About this document

It is a legal requirement (under the Children and Families Act 2014) for all schools to publish a SEN Information Report on their website and update it at least annually. The SEND Regulations 2014 and the SEND Code of Practice 2015 (CoP) set out all the information that must be included in this report. A helpful parent guide has also been created by the Department for Education regarding SEND in schools.

There is a lot of required information which can make it very overwhelming, please contact us if you would like to discuss anything from in this document.

Introduction

At Ellingham CE VC and Woodton Primary School Federation every child matters. We maintain every child's right to education and recognise the diverse educational needs within our community. We believe it is our duty to offer that provision, where we can, to foster inclusion and provide full educational access.

We try to ensure that all barriers to equal access in our schools are removed or overcome. We monitor and track progress of all children so that the support provided is as effective as possible. We welcome the full engagement of parents and carers and where necessary seek support and advice from specialists outside of school to ensure we develop and maintain a range of flexible resources to meet the needs of all our children.

Our Local Authorities

The local authority must, by law, set out a Local Offer of all services available to support children who are disabled or who have special educational needs and their families. The local offer enables families to understand what services they can access and what support they can expect from a range of local agencies, including from the local authority, health services, schools, leisure services and the voluntary sector. The offer includes provision from birth to 25, across education, health and social care. Norfolk's Local Offer can be found at;

www.norfolk.gov.uk/Childrens_services/Special_educational_needs_and_disabilities/index.htm

As we also geographically serve children and families living in Suffolk, their Local Offer can be found with the link below;

Who can I speak to at school about my child's difficulties with learning or SEND?

Your child's Class Teacher

- They check on the progress of your child and identify, plan and deliver any additional help your child may need (this could be things like targeted work, additional support) and inform the SENDCo as necessary.
- They write Individual Education Plans (IEPs) based upon each child's specific needs and development and share and review these with parents and the child each term whilst also planning for the next steps.
- They ensure that all staff working with your child in school are supported to deliver the planned work/programme for your child, so they can achieve the best possible progress.
- They ensure that the school's SEND Policy is followed in their classroom and for all pupils they teach with any additional need.
- They involve their pupils in the development of their education through supportive, child focused discussions.

What are Special Educational Needs and Disabilities?

What is a Disability?

The Equality Act 2010 definition of disability is:

“A person has a disability for the purposes of this Act if (s)he has a physical or mental impairment which has a substantial and long-term adverse effect on his ability to carry out normal day-to day activities.” Section 1(1)

Disability Discrimination Act 1995

This definition of disability in the Equality Act includes children with sensory impairments such as those affecting sight or hearing, or long-term health conditions such as asthma, diabetes, epilepsy, and cancer. Children and young people with such conditions do not necessarily have SEN, but there is a significant overlap between children with a disability and those with SEN. Children and young people may therefore be covered by both SEN and disability legislation.

What is a Disability?

All of our staff are aware of the requirements of the Equality Act 2010. This legislation places specific duties on schools, including the duty not to discriminate, harass or victimise a child or adult linked to a protected characteristic defined in the Equality Act and to make 'reasonable adjustments' to ensure that children with a disability are not at a significant disadvantage compared with their peers.

We strongly believe that all children, regardless of the ability, should have access to quality experiences that enhance their experience of school and education. This includes extra curricular clubs, class and school trips as well as in-class activities. We offer a wide range of after school clubs and have an exemplary record of ensuring access for all pupils, regardless of their additional needs.

For further information on how we ensure access for all, please see our Accessibility Plan on our website.

What is a Special Educational Need?

Every teacher is expected to teach at a range of levels that reflect the pupils' range of ability and understanding; this is quality first teaching. If your child is identified as having SEND, our job is to offer them something "extra" that is 'additional to or different from' this teaching. Any "extra" provision or intervention is designed to overcome the barrier to their learning.

Learners can fall behind in school for lots of reasons. They may have been absent from school, they may have attended lots of different schools and not had a consistent opportunity to learn. They may not speak English very well, or at all or they may have worries that distract them from learning.

So, not all vulnerable learners have SEND. Only those with a learning difficulty that requires special educational provision will be identified as having SEND.

The SEND Code of Practice recognises four broad areas of need when referring to Special Educational Needs.

Four main areas of SEND

Communication and Interaction

This can mean that a child has a speech, language and communication need (SLCN) i.e. they have difficulty in making themselves understood or in understanding the meaning of some or much of what they hear or read. This may result in problems taking part in conversations. Some children may have an Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) which could result in difficulties related to making sense of the world, imagination, distraction or distress from certain events, change in routines, coordination or motor (physical movement) functions.

Cognition and Learning

Children with learning needs will learn at a slower pace than other children and may have difficulty developing literacy or numeracy skills or understanding new concepts. Learning needs may be in addition to or as a result of other special educational needs. Children with a specific learning difficulty (SpLD) will have difficulties related to one or more needs including; dyslexia (reading and spelling), dyscalculia (maths), dyspraxia (co-ordination) and dysgraphia (writing).

Four main areas of SEND

Social, Emotional and Mental Health

Difficulties with emotional and social development may result in immature social skills and the inability to make or sustain relationships. Certain accompanying behaviours can also be observed such as becoming withdrawn or isolated or they may exhibit challenging, disruptive or disturbing behaviours. Unusual mood, presentation and medically unexplained physical symptoms can be indicators of a mental health need. Some children may have a diagnosis of a recognised disorder.

Sensory and/or Physical Needs

Children may have vision impairment (VI), hearing impairment (HI) or a multi-sensory impairment (MSI) that requires specialist support and/or equipment to access their learning. They may have a physical disability (PD) requiring support and equipment to access the opportunities available to their peers.

Many children can have their sensory and/or physical needs met through adaptations to the curriculum, teaching activities or physical environment under the guidance of the Equality Act 2010, however, some learners will require special educational provision.

How do we identify and support SEN?

How do we identify SEN?

At Ellingham CE VC and Woodton Primary Federation children are continually assessed, teachers observe the children in their class in different situations, they talk and listen to them and assess their written work.

If a class teacher has a concern about a child's lack of progress or low attainment, then they will speak to the SENDCo and inform parents at the first opportunity to alert them to concerns and enlist their active help and participation.

A parent might have shared their own concerns with their child's class teacher or the SENDCo.

Initial identification may also be made as a result of information or expressions of concern from other professionals e.g. a social worker, school nurse, GP, health visitor.

For particular children, more in depth assessments may be required. Some of these can be carried out by our SENDCo and sometimes we ask external agencies to carry these out. Whatever the difficulty, more can be done for children if help is sought earlier rather than later in their school careers.

How we support children with SEND

We follow a four-part cycle known as 'the graduated approach'. This process helps us make sure that the support we are giving is effective. It's important that children and their families are involved in reviewing this support throughout the process. The four parts of the graduated approach are: assess, plan, do and review:

Assess: we assess using information from parents/carers, the child, school staff and sometimes other professionals. We use a variety of initial assessments which can help us to identify the child's needs so that the right SEN support is given.

Plan: We plan what needs to happen next, taking into account the views of the child and their parents. We decide what help is needed, how this will happen and what we hope will change as a result.

Do: We carry out what we have planned for a fixed period of time.

Review: We meet to review what has worked well, what progress has been made and what has changed.

The process can then begin again, either with a new focus target or with different approaches if the original targets haven't been fully met.

How we support children with SEND - Transitions

Transitions come at different times throughout a child's school life. We recognise that each one can be overwhelming and difficult for many children. Whether it's the transition between breaktimes and lessons, the transition between classes or the transition into or out of our schools, we offer support and strategies for all children.

When a child joins us in Reception, the class teacher will liaise with the child's family and their Early Years Provider. We feel that meeting with the child and their family in both the Early Years setting and the family home allows the child to build a relationship with staff in their familiar environments before coming into school for transition sessions. Children attend transition sessions and meet the adults and children that they will be working most closely with. Families also have opportunities to visit the school and speak to staff.

If a child joins our federation in another year group, a similar process is followed. We will speak to new children and their families, as well as contacting your child's previous school so that we can gain an understanding of the needs of new pupils. Children and families will have opportunities to visit the school and additional support (such as being given a 'buddy' in their new class) will be offered.

When leaving us, a similar process is followed whereby we speak with the new school to ensure they have a detailed picture of the child and their needs. Additional transition sessions can also be arranged with the new school.

Who we work with to support children with SEND

First and foremost, we work in partnership with the child and their family to achieve the best possible outcomes for everyone involved.

However, we may, on occasion, request support from external professionals. This is always done with the best interests of the child in mind and with the full support of the family. Some of the professionals we use on a regular basis are listed below:

- * Educational Psychologist or Specialist Learning Support Teacher.
- * Speech and Language Therapy Service,
- * Dyslexia Outreach Service,
- * Children and Young Peoples' Health Services,
- * Occupational Therapy,
- * Outreach from a Specialist Resources Base Support Teacher,
- * School Nursing Team and Just One Norfolk
- * Support through Point 1 or Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services.
